Great Mid-Summer Clearing : Cash : Sale :

Owing to the still prevailing stringency in the financial world we have decided to commence our Fourth Annual Clearing Sale on MONDAY, JUNE 24TH.

Our object in doing so is to gradually put a stop to so much long credit business which every one knows has been the curse of both buyer and seller for the last few years. This sale will be strictly for CASH. None of the sale goods will be sold on credit or exchange for produce at sale prices. We hope that all our monthly customers will recognize that this is as much to their advantage as it is to ours, and not ask us to charge sale goods at sale prices. Before this sale commences we will go carefully through our stock and throw out all lines in which we are over-stocked, all odd lines and all goods that are not moving as freely as we would wish, mark them down (regardless of cost) and make the price sell them. All lines of goods are advancing in price, especially cottons, woollens and leather goods, so NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.

We Will Quote You Prices Next Week That Will Astonish You.

BOAT & BOAT HOUSE FOR SALE. PRAETON FOR SALE.

A GRAVE NUISANCE.

Information is gleaned from reliable sources that the noxious weeds nuisance is assuming grave proportions in our district. This is deeply to be deplored, and the fact calls for the taking of immediate and decisive measures for remedy. French weed and mustard, it is said, are growing to an alarming extent upon many farms in the neighborhood. The former is an especially dangerous and persistent enemy of successful agriculture. The district in which it is allowed to obtain a firm foothold is doomed to years of perpetual annoyance and loss; and to eradicate it requires unceasing vigilance and warfare. The growth of weeds causes a loss to the farmer both in the yield of his fields and in the value of his product. Forty bushels of wheat cannot grow upon an acre of dirty ground, and wheat mixed with the seeds of weeds cannot rank as No. 1 hard. The invasion of a district by noxious weeds is just as inimical to the pockets of the farmers therein, as is the invasion of a nation by hostile foreigners dangerous to the peace and freedom of the inhabitants; and both invasions require to be met in the same spirit. Every farmer should declare war to the death upon weeds, and the declaration should be followed by feats of arms (or implements) which will banish every vestige of weed from the soil. The weed refuses to be a servant. It will be master or nothing; and it takes it only a short time to obtain the mastery over a careless farmer.

In regard to noxious weeds, it is found that the careful farmer is at the mercy of his careless neighbour. The seeds allowed to mature upon the land of one careless farmer, will render useless the warfare waged upon the pest by twenty careful neighbors. Thus the weeds become of public interest. The North West Assembly has legislated against weeds. We are attempting to fathom the meaning of their legislation, and find it a puzzling undertaking. The attempt has convinced us anew of the necessity existing for consolidation of North-West Ordinances. We find that in 1892 the Assembly repealed all former enactments respecting weeds, and evolved a new law, making it an offence, punishable by a $20.00 fine, to allow weeds to ripen, and providing for the appointment in Municipalities of Inspectors to enforce the law; in unorganized districts it was provided that a majority of occupants in any area of not less than 36 square miles might petition the Lieut. Governor to appoint a Weeds Inspector, to have the same power as Inspectors within Municipalities. In 1893 another Ordinance was passed, giving to all Justices of the Peace optional power to act as ex officio Weeds Inspectors. At last session of the Assembly the Ordinance of 1892 was amended, as was also the Ordinance of 1893, in several particulars.

The gist of the whole, to the best of our understanding, might be applied in this district in this way: A majority of residents may secure the appointment by the Lieut. Governor of an Inspector, who will give notice to all occupants and owners to destroy noxious weeds. The refusal or neglect of such owners or occupants to destroy the weeds, will render them liable up on summary conviction to a fine of $20.00 for each day of such refusal or neglect. In the absence of an Inspector, any person may bring it to the attention of a J.P. that certain owners or occupants are refusing or neglecting to cut or destroy weeds growing upon their lands, when it shall be the duty of the J. P. to give notice in writing to such owners or occupants, requiring such destruction within five days from service of notice. If the weeds are not destroyed within the time, then the parties may be fined $20.00 for each day thereafter as long as the refusal or neglect is maintained.

When an Inspector is appointed, such Inspector is given power to enter upon lands and cut and destroy the weeds thereon, at the cost of the owner, which cost may be recovered before a J. P.

The requirement of prompt action by the farmers for their own protection against noxious weeds, cannot be too strongly urged. Immediate steps should be taken.

With the utmost good humor the gradually shrinking town council ordered payment of the above respectable table of accounts on Monday evening. Most of them were not given the courtesy of examination by the Finance committee, for the very good reason that there is now no Finance committee. The chairman and one member of the committee have resigned their seats, and the remaining member has been elevated to the chair as acting mayor.

Before order could be called it was found necessary to institute a round-up. There are now no members to spare. The absence of a councillor in the present crisis effectively blocks business. Mr. Fysh, the clerk, was not present. He is suffering from a severe attack of fever. Mr. J. H. Grayson was appointed as acting clerk. Coun. Field was voted to the chair, and empowered to affix his signature to money orders. Mr. Field is mayor pro tem. The acting-clerk read the accounts and communications. The school board asked for use of the hall to hold a poll upon the debenture by law on the 21st inst., which petition was accepted. The resignation of Coun. Wilcox, chairman of Finance, was read, and accepted with regret, so Coun. Wilson stated.

A report from the defunct Finance committee recommended the proposed increase of $25.00 in the salary of the collector, which recommendation was adopted, and the clerk was authorized to issue an order for $25.00 in favor of Mr. Wallace, being the balance of salary due him with the $25.00 added.

It was resolved that the Clerk be instructed to take necessary steps for an election of Mayor and two councillors, to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Mayor Neeland and Couns. Ferguson and Wilcox.

A by-law to confirm the appointment of Henry Battell as Inspector was introduced and read a first time. His salary will be $40.00 per month during the gardening season.

It was resolved that C. Langford be required to furnish a statement of poll taxes collected by him, and pay over any amounts remaining in his hands, after which the clerk may issue an order for payment of balance of his salary as Inspector.

The auditors' reports upon the town books for 1893, and the collector's roll for 1894, were presented to the council and tabled. They report that the roll of Collector Wallace was found in apple pie order. Of the current taxes for 1894 and arrears, Mr. Wallace collected $4,911.40, leaving a balance uncollected of $2,229.08. The auditors express the opinion that the arrears might have been reduced to a greater extent without recourse to harsh measures. A few minor inaccuracies in the roll of the collector for 1893, and in the debits and credits of the clerk for that year were discovered. The council adjourned at 22.30.

Pointers From Parliament.

Daly has given notice of a bill to amend the qualification of voters in the North-West at Dominion elections, the effect of which is to make the qualification the same as that for voters in local elections. The measure is an eminently sensible one, and will be hailed with satisfaction. It means manhood suffrage pure and simple, with one proviso only as to residence.

Mulock is pushing a bill making it unlawful for any Member of Parliament to ask for or accept an office in the gift of the government. As present persons holding government positions are ineligible to sit in the House; but there are this session members sitting and voting in the House who have promises of positions in their pockets. Such influence must be fatal to independence.

David's Woman Suffrage resolution received 17 favorable votes to 105 against. Public sentiment in favor of the entire emancipation of women is undoubtedly growing. Laurier declined to vote straight "nay," and took refuge in an amendment to relegate the question to the provinces. Foster, Costigan and Dickey of the cabinet voted "yea."

Charlton's bill to make more stringent the measures against seduction was on motion of Tupper given the six months hoist.

McMullen's bill to curtail the huge superannuation expenditure was ruled out of order by the Speaker, inasmuch as it proposed to recoup civil servants who had paid into the fund. All measures which propose any charge upon the revenue must emanate from the government.

Davin's resolution to pay N. W. rebellion scout claims was adopted by the government.

Yes, Thresh It Out.

Widely divergent opinions are held by school ratepayers respecting the wisdom of the debenture by-law submitted by the board, and in several quarters the suggestion is made that another public meeting might conduce to a better general appreciation of the position. Further public discussion could do no harm, and it might do good. The chairman of the board would certainly act for the good of the district by calling a meeting before polling day.

St. John the Baptist's Church.

The Patronal and Dedication Festival begins on Saturday June 22nd (the vigil of St. John the Baptist) with Evensong and Sermon at 19.30 and will be continued on Sunday 23rd with a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock and a second celebration (choral) at 11, with sermon by the Rev. Howard A. Holmes, M.A. Children's service at 14.30. Festal Evensong and Sermon by the Vicar at 19 o'clock. On Monday, June 24th, Festal Evensong and Sermon at 19.30.

Glencourse Council.

The usual meeting of Templars took place in Russell hall on Tuesday evening. Select Councillor Nelson in the chair and Miss Hannah in the vice chair. The attendance was large and a great deal of important business was transacted, a portion of which was the final decision of the council in the matter of holding an entertainment here in July when the Welby sisters of England will be introduced under the auspices of Glencourse Council.

The exercises for the good of the order, were as follows: Organ solo, "Royal March," Miss N. McDonald; address, "Why I am a Templar," R. Victor Fleming; duet, "A Starry Night for a Ramble," Misses Susan and Johnson; reading, "Our Guide in Home," W. J. Nelson; song, "The Sea Song," the German Mr. Grandin; address, "The Future Man," Mr. Timmins; song, "Little Girls in Blue," Miss I. E. Battell; closing chorus, "Keep Step Ever," Glee Club.

Canadian Weather Map.

The Canadian Meteorological Service monthly map is regularly received by Mr. C. A. W. Stunt, who is observation officer at Moose Jaw. The map is interesting and valuable. The edition for May last is now on exhibition at Mr. Baker's store. The following record taken from the map shows the rainfall during that month in the areas from British Columbia to Nova Scotia:—Victoria 1.6 inches, Vancouver 4.4, Spencer Bridge 1.7, Calgary 0.3, Edmonton 0.8, Medicine Hat 0.6, Swift Current 1.8, Battleford 2.6, Qu'Appelle 2.4, Minnedosa 3.4, Winnipeg 3.8; a considerable district in Northern Ontario east of Rat Portage registered only 1.6, then a narrow strip further east recorded with 3.4, while the district east and west of Port Arthur figures at 2.8; the district lying east of Lake Superior, 3.1; further east and due north of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, under 3 inches; the counties in Ontario bordering the lakes had light rainfall: Huron county 1.2, at Port Stanley 1.9, at Toronto 2.3; the central Ontario counties averaged better, 3 inches; Eastern Quebec received nearly 4 inches; the district around Quebec city 2.7, and the Gaspé peninsula 3.8. In New Brunswick precipitation varied from 2.6 at Fredericton to 5.3 at St. John's; Nova Scotia and Cape Breton got a heavy fall: 5.1 at Yarmouth, 4.1 at Halifax, 4.6 at Truro, and 4.9 at Sydney. The driest areas during the month were Alberta, the lake counties in Ontario and central New Brunswick.

A DOCTOR OF THE OLD SCHOOL

THROUGH THE FLOOD.

Dr. MacLure did not lead a solemn procession from the sick bed to the dining-room, and give his opinion from the hearth-rug with an air of wisdom bordering on the supernatural, because neither the Drumtechtly houses nor his manners were on that large scale. He was accustomed to deliver himself in the yard, and to conclude his directions with one foot in the stirrup; but when he left the room where the life of Annie Mitchell was ebbing slowly away, our doctor said not one word, and at the sight of his face her husband's heart was troubled.

He was a dull man, Tammas, who could not read the meaning of a sign, and labored under a perpetual disability of speech; but love was eyes to him that day, and a mouth.

"It's as bad as yir lookin', doctor! tell's the truth; wull Annie no come through?" and Tammas looked MacLure straight in the face, who never flinched his duty or said anything things.

"A' wud gie smoothing tae say Annie has a chance, but a' daurna; a' doot yir gaein tae lose her, Tammas."

MacLure was in the saddle, and as he gave his judgment, he laid his hand on Tammas's shoulder with one of the rare caresses that pass between men.

"It's a sair business, and y' 'll play the man and no vex Annie; she 'll dae her best, a' 'll warrant."

"An' a' 'll dae mine," and Tammas gave MacLure's hand a grip that would have crushed the bones of a weakling. Drumtechtly felt in such moments the brotherliness of this rough-looking man, and loved him.

Tammas hid his face in Jess's mane, who looked round with sorrow in her beautiful eyes, for she had seen many tragedies, and in this silent sympathy the stricken man drank his cup, drop by drop.

"A' weas prepared for this, for a' ye thoct she wud live the laigest. . . . She's younger than me by ten years, and never was ill. . . . We've been mairit twa year last Martinmas, but it's just like a year the day she was born worthily (nooest), kindliest lass in the Glen. . . . A' never daut mak oot hoo she ever lookit at me, at henna had as word tae say about her till it's ower late. . . . She didna cast up her mood at nought, she wud be o' her, no her, but aye she said, 'Yir man gudeman, and nane cud be kinder tae me.' . . . An' a' was minded tae be kind, but a' see noo mair little trokes a' micht hae dune for her and noo the time is by. . . . Naebody kens hoo patient she was, an' aye she made the best o' me, an' never pit me tae shame afore the folk. . . . An' we never had as cross word, no aye in twa year. . . . We were mair nor man and wife, we were sweetharts a' the time. . . . Oh, ma bonnie lass, what 'll the bairnies an' me dae without ye, Annie?"

The winter night was falling fast, the snow lay deep upon the ground, and the merciless north wind moaned through the close as Tammas wrestled with his sorrow-dryed, for tears were denied Drumtechtly men. Neither the doctor nor Jess moved hand or foot, but their hearts were with their fellow creature, and at length the doctor made a sign to Margaret Howe, who had come out in search of Tammas, and now stood by his side.

"Dinna moun tae the brakin' o' yir heart, Tammas," she said, "as if Annie an' ye hed never loved. Neither death nor time can part them that love; there's naethin' in a' the world sae strong as love. If Annie gae frae the sicht o' yir ane she 'll come like the nearest tae yir heart. She wants tae see ye, and tae hear ye say that ye 'll never forget her nigh nor day till ye meet in the land where there's nae partin'." A kee waa a' m' sayin', for its five year noo in George gied awa, an' he's mair wi' me noo than when he was in Edinboro' and I was in Drumtechtly."

"Thank ye kindly, Margaret; tae aye guide words and true, an' ye hev the right tae say them; but a' cannae dae without seein' Annie comin' tae meet me in the gloamin' an' gaein in an' oot the hoose, an' hearin' her o' me by ma name, an' if I'll no can tell her that a' luv her when there's nae Annie in the hoose."

"Can naethin' be dune, doctor? Ye savit Flora Cammell, and young Burnbrae, an' yon shepherd's wife Dunleith yir, an' we were a' tae go o' ye, an' please tae think that ye hev kept deith frae another hame. Can ye no think o' somethin' tae help Annie, and gie her back tae her man and bairnies?" and Tammas searched the doctor's face in the cold winter light.

"There's nae power in heaven or airth like love," Margaret said me afterwards; "it makes the weak strong and the dumb tae speak. Oor herts were as water afore Tammas's words, an' a' saw the doctor shake his saddle. A' never kent till that meent hoo he had a share in a body's grief, an' carried the heaviest woe o' a' the Glen. A' pectied him wi' Tammas lookin' at him sae wistfully, as if he had the keys o' life and deith in his hands. But he was honest, and wudna hold o' a false hoop tae deceive a sore heart or win escape for himself."

"Ye needna plead wi' me, Tammas, tae dae the best a' can for yir wife. Man, a' kent her lang afore ye ever luv'd her; a' brocht her intae the world, and a' saw her through the fever when she was a bit lassie; a' closed her mither's een, and it was me hed tae tell her she was an orphan, an' nae man was better pleased when she got a gude husband, and a' helpit her wi' her lower bairns. A' never neither wife nor bairns o' ma own, an' a' coont a' the folk o' the Glen ma family. Div ye think a' wudna save Annie if I could? If I had a man in Muirtown tae cud dae mair for her, a' had him this vera nigh, but a' the doctors in Perthshire are helpless for this tribble."

"Tammas, ma pair fallow, if it could wad, I'd tell ye a wud lay down this auld worn-out ruckle o' a body o' mine just tae see ye baith sittin' at the fire, and a' the bairns roond ye, outhy an' canty again; but it's no tae be, Tammas, it's no tae be."

"When a' lookit at the doctor's face," Margaret said, "a' thoct him the wisestest man a' ever saw. He was transfurged that night, for a' was judgin' there's nae transfurging like love."

"It's God's wull an' maun be borne, but it's a sair wull for me, an' a' m' no gratify tae ye, doctor, for a' ye've dune and what ye said the nigh, and Tammas went back tae sit wi' Annie for the last time."

Jess picked her way through the deep snow to the main road, with a skill that came of long experience, and the doctor held converse with her according to his wont.

"Eh, Jess, wuman, ye was the hardest-wat a' hae tae face, an' a' wud rather hae tae ma chance o' another row in a Glen Urquhart drift than tell Tammas Mitchell his wife was deen."

"A' said she cudna be cured, and it was true, for there's just as man in the a' doot, and they micht as wud try tae get the mune oot o' heaven. Sae a' said naethin' tae vex Tammas's hert, for it's heavy enough without regrets."

"But it's hard, Jess, that money wull buy life after a', an' if Annie was a duceless man wudna lose her; but being only a pair o' tae wife, the man dae afore the week's oot."

"Gin we hed him the morn there's little doot she wud be saved, for he henna lost mair than five per cent o' his own case, and they 'll be pair toon's crature, no strappin' women like Annie."

"It's oot o' the question, Jess, sae hurry up, lass, for we've had a heavy day. But it wud be the greatest thing that was ever dune in the Glen in oot time, if it could be managed by hoo or crook."

"We 'll gang and see Drumhaugh, Jess; he's another man sin' George Hoo's deith, and he was yir kinder than koo kent," and the doctor passed at a gallop through the village, whose lights shone across the white frost-bound road.

"Come in by, doctor; a' heard ye on the road; ye 'll hae been at Tammas Mitchell's; hoo's the guidwife? a' doot she's sober."

"Annie's deen, Drumhaugh, an' Tammas is like tae brak his hert."

"That's no lightsome, doctor, no lightsome ava (at all), for a' dinna ken o' yir man in Drumtechtly sae bund up in his wife as Tammas, and there's nae bonnier wuman o' her age crosses oor kirk door than Annie, nor cleaver at her work. Man, ye 'll need tae pit yir brains in steep. Is she clean beyond ye?"

"Beyond me and every ither in the land but an', and it wud coot a hundred guineas tae bring him tae Drumtechtly."

"Certe, he's no blate (backward); it's a fell charge for a short day's work; but hundred or no hundred we 'll hae him, an' no let Annie gang, and her no half her years."

"Are ye meanin' it, Drumhaugh?" and Margaret turned with below the tale, and "William MacLure," said Drumhaugh, in one of the few confidences that ever broke the Drumtechtly reserve, "a' m' a lonely man, wi' naebody o' ma ain blude tae care for me livin', or tae lift me intae ma coffin when a' m' deid."

HEALTH.

Development of a Child.

From the earliest age of the child regard should be had to the proper development of the body. Regular feeding and suitable food, daily stimulation of the great excretory organ—the skin—by bathing, a due amount of outdoor air, and as soon as the child is old enough of outdoor exercise—these constitute the main part of early physical training.

Even in infancy, a moderate amount of rubbing of the limbs, a kind of modified massage, excites a fuller circulation and aids development.

Children should not be encouraged to support themselves on their feet too early. When a child begins to walk, its own instincts impel it to almost continuous activity, which must at times be interrupted by sleep of the most profound nature. The sleep of young children should be carefully guarded from interruption, if one wishes to save them from nervousness, peevishness, and irritability.

But while the tendency of the child to be constantly "on the go" must sometimes be restrained, the object of such restraint should never be to make the child "a little gentleman" or "a little lady" in other words to keep him in clothes clean. Those who give their children over entirely to the care of a nurse should see to it that the nurse is not too much taken up with the idea of having the children always "look nice."

A child of three, four, or five years of age should have plenty of exercise other than that of being led or pulled about by the hand. Only one set of muscles is called into play by this treatment, and the practice is easily carried to excess. The constant use of one set of muscles to the exclusion of others, as well as the assumption of an habitual posture, tends to muscular, and even bony, deformity.

That exercise is most nearly perfect which calls into use the greatest number of muscles. For that reason, variety is advisable, even in play.

Though no exercise is quite so good as when performed out-of-doors, indoor games must be permitted when inclement seasons prevent the child from going out. Games of a more quiet nature may be necessary indoors, but those which excite laughter are desirable, since laughter alone excites some of the muscles most important to a healthful functional activity.

The Influenza.

The epidemic of influenza which is now passing over England and other European countries is so severe that the British Medical Journal has published some popular instructions for its prevention and cure. A regular life, plenty of open air exercise, short of fatigue, a proper number of hours in bed and regular meals of good, simple food are among the best prophylactics. The use of an antiseptic mouth wash several times a day, when there is exposure to contagion, should be adopted, and the advice so often given, not to despise or attempt to fight down the disease when once it has begun, must be repeated and insisted upon. It was said last year by many experienced physicians that the best cure for influenza was two days in bed in a warm and well-ventilated room; and this recommendation can not be improved upon. One sufferer, who had passed through his fifth serious attack of influenza, says he derived the greatest possible benefit from mixing fifteen grains of citrate of potash in a tumbler of hot water, adding the juice of one lemon, and sipping the decoction during the day and night.

The Cause of Wrinkles.

An eminent physician says:—"Comfortable dressing is a positive foe to wrinkles. Pale cheeks and dull eyes. Loose shoes, easy-fitting corsets, light weight clothing, and especially warm clothing are positive beautifiers."

One of the most fruitful causes of wrinkles is straining the eyes. Sudden transitions from darkness to light, or vice versa, make the eyes strain and produce wrinkles. Reading by dim light, overworking the eyes and wearing cross-barred and dotted veils help on the wrinkle-producing work.

For Your Throat.

Nothing among old-fashioned remedies gives more instant relief in throat or chest troubles than emphyreol oil. One can easily make it at home by pouring olive oil upon camphor gum until it ceases to dissolve. It is an excellent plan to always have a supply of this on hand.

A Lion Park.

Mr. Cecil Rhodes is making a "lion preserve" on his estate at Rondebosch, near Cape Town, South Africa. It will be enclosed by a 16-foot fence, and, curiously enough, it will be stocked with animals from England. Perhaps the domesticated animals will be easier to manage than untamed ones from the wild. Mr. Rhodes has several times pulled down his house and built it up again; and he is constantly altering the aspect of his huge estate. He employs fifty black "boys" regularly in planting and improving on nature, and he is now making a five-mile drive through his place.

Aluminum in Wall Paper.

The uses of aluminum do not seem to have been exhausted yet. It is now coming into use in the decoration of wall papers, many beautiful conceptions being shown, in which this metal is a conspicuous figure. In floral striped effects the motives are printed on beautiful embossed grounds, which gives a burnished effect to the aluminum that is very desirable. An effective arrangement of daisies and fern leaves around the metal line adds to the decorative for parlor or bed room. This use of aluminum with colors, or with out the addition of gold, is spoken of as another special feature of this new class of papers.

True hope is swift, and flies with swallow wings; kings it makes gods, and meager creatures kings.—Shakespeare.

Count Schouvaloff, the new viceroy of Poland, has issued an order allowing Poles to send telegraphic dispatches in their own language. During the reign of General Gorko the vernacular was forbidden as a telegraphic medium, and the majority of the Poles were ignorant of Russian as a written language.

A STORY FROM VIRGINIA

JACOB HAMMICK'S SECRET OF EM-BALMING PERFECTLY.

Human Bodies, Eggs, Fruit, Butter, Etc., Kept Fresh for Years with the Preparation—A Wise Old Virginian.

The following is a letter from Philip, West Virginia, and the tale it tells is very interesting:

Crowded down between two big hills in a valley so narrow one can throw a stone across it is this quaint, quiet, refined village, the county seat of Barbour County. It has barely 200 population, and only one street and several alleys. The Tygart river, blue and clear, circles round the little place on its banks, hedged in by the high hills. Right in the centre of the place is the low court house, in the midst of two acres of parklike grounds. The jail is at one side and almost always a deer or two strolls about the grassy walks.

The town is old. It began when people came over the mountains in wagons. Traces of old Virginia architecture are on every side. It is claimed that there are more educated men and cultured women in this little village crowded down against the Tygart's flow than in any other town of similar size anywhere.

But the culture of the citizens and their old-fashioned, delightful hospitality are not the only attraction.

THE SCENERY IS GRAND

For miles; boating and fishing are excellent, and two miles away over the hillslope, down in a sunny valley, is the log house of a wonderful old man—Jacob Hammick. He was born in old Virginia, was not much in schools, but his wisdom is known to all in the counties hereabout. He had a lad for embalming, and with a secret process he has filled his house and barn and yard with the strangest things. At the door a great big dog lies watching. Fowl stand about, and pigs made uncleaning in the barn. There are fawns and birds and reptiles in the lower rooms of his house, and upstairs are the bodies of two women who have been dead these fifteen years, yet on the cheeks of one the red flush of consumption is still visible. These corpses are nude, yet they have not decayed, nor were the viscera ever removed.

HIS PROCESS EFFECTUAL

This old wizard of the mountains by the same process preserves eggs and butter for months, and scores of families in Baltimore, where he sells them, eat "fresh" eggs and butter in winter put up months before in the quiet West Virginia valley. Fruit and meat are kept in the same way.

Mr. Hammick can take a body at death, and without removing a hair or without mutilation of any kind can keep it unchanged for years. There is no wrapping of cloths or use of varnishes. It gradually shrinks, but never decays.

His fame is known in New York city, where he goes often to preserve the bodies of a society which does not believe in either cremation or interment. Delicate samples of the Smithsonian Institution are given him to prepare for preservation. He has no knowledge of drugs save what he has picked up. He has used his eyes and his brain. He is tall, white-haired, clean-faced, and looks the whole world, straight in the eye. He is known to simplicity.

The country people are so accustomed to the wonders he performs that he is not thought of as an object of interest to tell strangers about. So, with the exceptions named, this Wizard of Tygart Valley, modest and unassuming, lives in his log home, and is content with a secret the world would be better to know.

A QUEER NEIGHBORHOOD.

He says his process is as cheap as the wafers in the river; that it preserves food for the living, and will preserve the bodies of the dead. The fluid is tasteless, colorless, and free from odor. Carcasses can be kept in the hottest weather without ice and without decay. Eggs by the thousand are treated by his method and laid away for months, when they sell in Baltimore to one firm for strictly first-class fresh eggs. Hammick is approaching 90 years of age, but looks like a man of 60. He is tall, fair-skinned, blue-eyed, his hair is like snow. He is a firm believer in religion, but belongs to no church. His statement on any matter of business is never disputed. "Honest as Hammick" is the shibboleth of the hills.

On the other side of Philip, across the hills, grouped about a small valley, are two hundred curious negroes, known as Guineas. The men are tall and athletic, with copper colored faces and black, wiry hair, that shines in the sun like jet. They are neat in appearance, and their homes are well kept. The women, much less in stature than the men, are given to gaudiness in ornament. They do the trading, and sometimes beg. They are virtuous and not given to gadding about. These Guineas are said to be the direct offspring of a famous old Virginian, who bought the land on which they live, and set them free upon it.

Once a week the women, clothed in red dresses, with broad brimmed hats, hectic with the profusion of bright-colored flowers, come over the hills to barter at the stores. They are sharp traders. If they have any religion at all, it is half voodoo. At their weddings and funerals curious customs prevail. They never marry outside the clan, and red is their favorite color.

Circumstances Alter Case

True hope is swift, and flies with swallow wings; kings it makes gods, and meager creatures kings.—Shakespeare.

Man—Is Mr. Morton still paying attention to your daughter?

Mr. Goldbug—Why, good gracious, no! He's not paying her any attention at all now. They're married.

COMPLETELY PARALYZED.

PHYSICIANS ARE ASTOUNDED BY A PECULIAR CASE.

A Young Canadian Stricken with Paralysis While in New York—Returned to His Home at London, Ont., as He Believed to Be—The Means of Recovery Health Preserved Out by a Clergyman who Visited Him.

Stricken with Landry's paralysis and yet cured. That means but little to the average layman, but it means a miracle to a physician. Such is the experience of O. E. Dallimore, at present a resident of Madison, N. J., and a rare experience of it.

"Yes, it is true that I had Landry's paralysis," said Mr. Dallimore to the reporter, "or else the most celebrated physicians of London were mistaken. That I was cured is clearly apparent." With this he straightened up as sturdy and promising a son of Britain as ever trod American soil.

"It was on the 15th of March last," he continued, "when I was in New York city, that I first felt symptoms of my trouble. I experienced the usual numbness, my legs failing to support me. I consulted a physician who informed me that I had every symptom of locomotor ataxia, but as the case developed he pronounced it a case of Landry's paralysis and knowing the nature of the disease advised me to start for my home and friends. I gave up my work and on April 1st started for London, Ont. A well known physician was consulted by me rapidly, several physicians held a consultation on my case. I was informed that I was dead's door, having but three to six days to live, still lingering on, by this time completely paralyzed, my hands and feet being dead; I could hardly whisper my name and could only swallow liquids. Oh, the misery of those moments are beyond all description and death would really have been a welcome visitor."

"Now comes the part that has astounded the physicians. Rev. Mr. Gundy, a clergyman who visited me in my last hours, he supposed, told me of the marvelous cure of paralysis that had been performed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I started to take the pills about April 28th and a week after that felt an improvement in my condition. I was able to walk, and tingling sensations in the limbs that had been entirely dead and I soon began to move my feet and hands. The improvement continued until May 28, when I was taken out of bed for a drive and drove the horse myself. By the beginning of July I was able to walk upstairs alone and paid a visit to Niagara."

"Slowly but surely I gained my old health and strength leaving London for New York on October 11 and beginning my work again on October 26, 1894. Cured of Landry's paralysis in eight months."

To confirm his story beyond all doubt, Mr. Dallimore made the following affidavit:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, ss.

MORRIS COUNTY.

Olive E. Dallimore, being duly sworn on his oath said that the foregoing statement is just and true.

OLIVE E. DALLIMORE.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of a gripe, palpitation of the heart, the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppression, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excess of whatever nature. There are no ill effects following the use of this wonderful medicine, and it can be given to children with perfect safety.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and are sold in bottles bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

Miss Beau (regretfully)—I am afraid not. He is a character in the Arabian nights. Everything he touched turned to gold.

Get Rid of Neuralgia.

There is no use in fooling with neuralgia. It is a disease that gives way only to the most powerful remedies. No remedy yet discovered has given the grand result that invariably attends the employment of Polson's Nerviline. Nerviline is a positive specific for all nerve pains, and ought to be kept on hand in every family. Sold every where, 25 cents a bottle.

"Rock Me to Sleep, Mother."

The poem, "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother," was written by Elizabeth Akers Allen, known otherwise as "Florence Percy." It is a general favorite for it is a sweet little touch of home life. But there is another side to the picture. Many a mother rocks her child to sleep who can neither rest nor sleep herself. She is always tired, has an everlastingly backache, is low spirited, weary, nervous and all that. Thanks be she can be cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do the work. There is nothing on earth like it, for the "compliments" to which the sex are liable. Once used, it is always in favor.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are a specific for bill ousness, headaches, constipation, piles, and kindred ailments.

C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "Gentlemen—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and, as I was unable to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the sores had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Bangerville, Maine.

FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1895.

THAT SATISFACTORY INCREASE!

It is curious to note the intense satisfaction which government journals are pre-empting to squeeze out of the reported increase made in Territorial population during the past four years, —an increase of 21,276 souls exclusive of Indians.

For the year 1892 the Deputy Minister of Interior reported that 4,948 homestead entries had been made within the Territories, from which he calculated a probable increase in population of 14,972 souls. Following out this calculation for the four years in question would give these figures: —

1891, 3,323 entries, population swelled by	10,699
1892, 4,948 do do do	14,972
1893, 4,967 do do do	12,396
1894, 3,279 do do do	9,779
Total	47,846

Add to the above number the natural increase which in this new, prolific and healthy country is certainly not less than 2 per cent. per year, or for the four years 8 per cent. upon a population in 1891 of 52,230, which gives us 4,178, and we have a total of 51,826 as the number which a study of the immigration returns for the past four years would have led us to expect the increase in Territorial population to have reached.

The calculation of the Deputy Minister, estimating an influx of three souls for every homestead entry made, cannot be considered an extravagant one. The discrepancy between the figures of the Mounted Police census and the immigration returns can have but two modes of explanation. Either the people who have settled in the country have not remained in the country, or the people who are in the country have not been accurately counted by the Police. Commissioner Herchmer emphatically—with ridiculous warmth and emphasis, indeed—repudiates the latter proposition. The Government can not with comfort accept the former, for what does that imply? The implication is, that given a country with natural advantages and resources unequalled by any sparsely populated country under the sun, the government by the imposition of artificial tariff restrictions and draw-backs, and by permitting a railway monopoly to levy burdensome tolls upon struggling pioneers, have rendered this naturally advantageous country unfit to live in. It implies that out of every five persons whom our enormous immigration expenditures have induced into the country, three have despaired of making a living in the country, and have departed from it. How the government or any sane journal can manage to work up a feeling of satisfaction over that fact passes our comprehension.

THE TIMES was the first to express a doubt as to the accuracy of the Mounted Police census figures. It was folly to imagine that an absolutely correct census could be taken by the hurried manner in which the Police were set to work. When the Commissioner said in Winnipeg that he would take oath that his men had not made a solitary mistake, we felt constrained to laugh. The Calgary Herald would also seem to be indisposed to take Mr. Herchmer's word as gospel truth, for it prints a complaint from the Pine Creek settlement in Alberta, that a strip of country 18 miles by 6, from the Bow river west, was not touched by the enumerator; not merely a house or two missed, but the whole settlement. A few instances like that, if proven, would knock the value of the Police census, for any purpose, into a cocked hat. We can scarcely give credence to that complaint. While we recognize that it is impossible for the census, taken in such a manner, to be rigidly accurate, we are willing to assume that in the aggregate it is sufficiently near being correct to fulfil the object for which it was taken. The extremely unsatisfactory showing of the returns should not be placed to the debit account of the Police.

AN EXAMPLE IN PROTECTION.

Despite the determination of the Government to hang to the tattered old National Policy, it is difficult at this day to find a paper in Canada with the courage to consistently stand up for the main principle of that policy. A few weeks ago we had the Calgary Herald admitting the many disadvantages under which protection placed the North-West. Now we have even so rabid a ministerial journal as The Nor-Western has become of late, making an apology for the poor old policy. "The National Policy," says The Nor-Western, "is now only moderately protective." This is an open confession that the less protection the people of Manitoba and the North-West are burdened with the better. The thing is of course so patent that it cannot be intelligently denied. Protection increases the prices of our supplies. If it does not, then of what earthly use is it? If protection does not enable Canadian manufacturers to charge higher prices than they would charge in a free market, then why do we pay hosts of customs officers to enforce it? To deny that our supplies are made dearer by protection, is to abandon the only legitimate argument in protection's favor. When we have money to spend, we secure less for it in a protected market than in a free market. When we have produce to sell, we sell it for precisely the same sum in this protected market that we would receive were the market free. That in a nutshell is the position which the North-West occupies under protection. That is a statement of the case which cannot be honestly denied. Protection takes money out of our pockets and puts none into it. Other portions of Canada may receive some compensating return for their disadvantages under the system, but in this portion the plan is wholly one-sided. Then why should any sane citizen of the North-West vote for a system by which he is robbed?

A study of statistics gives rise to doubts as to whether protection is really a good means of fostering manufactures. Most of us believe that competition is the life of trade. Now the prime object of protection is to stifle competition. Take a boy, give him unlimited wealth, ensure him a first position in society, and you kill the natural ambitions in the boy; you take from him all incentives to progress. May not the same cause produce a like effect upon the manufacturer? A statistical instance is appended. The manufactured cotton trade in the United States has been heavily protected for 76 years. The factories in England have worked 50 years without protection. The United States produced the raw material for the trade. England is obliged to buy the raw cotton from the United States. The value of the United States exports of manufactured cotton is $13,000,000 yearly as against English exports of $325,000,000 yearly. England actually sends twice as much manufactured cotton back into the United States as the latter sends out to all the world. The United States with its cotton fields should control the entire trade which is handled by Great Britain. Why does she not? The reason is simply this, Her manufacturers have been put to sleep by protection, and British factories, kept alive by the competition inseparable from free trade, have profited by Uncle Sam's inertia.

TALKING ABOUT CHANGE.

There is an agitation on foot to have a change made in the Canadian flag. The agitators say that our flag is not distinctive enough. They want something purely and unmistakably Canadian. Our flag now is the Union Jack with the Dominion shield in the lower right hand corner. Sanford Fleming proposes that the shield should be replaced by a white star of seven points (a point for every province; when a province is added, add a point). Sir Donald Smith would rather have a maple leaf. The beaver has also been suggested.

There are some people in Canada agitating for a change of government. It is proposed to replace Sir Mackenzie Bowell by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier. The Patrons are not so particular about making a change in the Cabinet, but they are anxious to have a change in policy and in methods of administration inaugurated. In Great Britain also the people are calculating upon having a change of government in the fall.

A change which may prove more directly beneficial, and will be more keenly appreciated by readers of THE TIMES, is the change in the type of season now being experienced. For some years past the summers in this part were very emphatically dry seasons. Last summer was indeed a barren season. Oldtimers in the country said those kind of summers were exceptional, and prophesied an early return of bounteous seasons; but newer settlers almost lost heart and despaired of ever reaping adequate results from their toil. The old-timers can now say, "We told you so." The plentiful rains of the last three weeks are pledges of the return of most beneficent natural conditions. The change in seasons would appear to be already established.

The present year of grace is evidently destined to be fraught with momentous changes, and accordingly it will probably be a propitious year in which to make a change in the name of this pretty little town of Moose Jaw. Moose Jaw! What's in a name? asks the poet. Well, in the name of this town there is little but crudity, clumsiness and ugliness. It is totally devoid of anything pleasantly suggestive. Every time we see reference made to "lumpy jaw"—that nasty cattle complaint—we are reminded of "Moose Jaw"; and we fear that before long we will not be able to write the name "Moose Jaw" without thinking of "lumpy jaw." The only redeeming point about the name is that it will never be duplicated by any community upon the earth's surface, and of course that prevents confusion; but there can be no difficulty in selecting another name which will possess the same advantage without its ugliness. Let us at once set about choosing a neat name for the neatest town in the Territories.

SHORT-SIGHTED ECONOMY.

The people of Toronto a few days ago defeated a $75,000 money bill for the improvement of water supply, and the Ottawa Journal says they made particularly conspicuous idiots of themselves by so doing. The passing of the bill would have entailed a yearly cost in interest and sinking fund of $1,500. Already this year the lack of the improvement has cost the city $7,000, and hundreds more will be wasted monthly so long as the improvement is lacking.

The school ratepayers of Moose Jaw will on the 21st inst. have a chance to parallel the foolish action of those "conspicuous idiots" of Toronto, but it is to be ardently hoped they will show better sense. The ratification of the school debt by-law will cause taxation of $400 next year; while it defeat will cause taxation of $700. What possible advantage can there be in pottering around with rented rooms here and there, when the expenditure of less money will secure permanent accommodation to fulfil modern requirements? Even presuming that there might be a saving by it,—which there cannot be—there is room for very serious doubt as to whether the Department of Education would approve of the best rooms that might be available for rental. Those people who argue that the Superintendent would be easily satisfied, and who point to the miserable quarters that were pressed into school service in the early days of the town, are basing their contention upon a condition which, fortunately for educational interests, is a condition of the past. In those days our educational system was a sort of go-as-you-please affair. That condition is changed. A very large proportion of the whole public fund in the North-West is expended upon education; and mainly to see that this fund is used to best advantage, the Territories are paying $3,000 a year to a practical superintendent. If this school district fails to furnish school rooms properly lighted, heated and ventilated, and with proper sanitary surroundings, that superintendent would have no option but to cut off the grants. If it is not for enforcing the just regulations, then for goodness' sake what do we pay him for?
